The Training Point -Skill Enhancement Train The Trainers

An uncommon learning exchange for addiction trainers.

The Training Point is a seven-week course designed to enhance knowledge and abilities in addiction training, grounded in the principles of adult theory and practice.

The first five weeks and final week of the course are held online. The middle week of the course is an intensive three-day, face-to-face learning exchange. Participants focus on the various components that create successful training experiences: the learners, the environment, the materials and the trainer.

Course Topics:

- Learning and Training Styles
- Facilitation and Presentation Skills
- Transforming Learning
- Culturally Responsive Teaching
- Adult Learning Principles
- Action Research
- Giving and Receiving Feedback
- and more . . .

If you are an experienced trainer, you can share your knowledge with others and pick up some new ideas yourself. If you are a counselor taking on the challenge of providing workshops for others, you can learn how your counseling skills can apply to teaching others what you know. If you are a researcher, you can get the feel for what it means to serve as an adult educator.
